

The time before and during the celebrations of the Day of the Dead (Nov. 2) is one of the best and most colourful times of the year to visit Mexico City.

Altars decorated with Marigold flowers, the traditional "Bread of Dead" and the famous Catrina are some of the highlights that can be enjoyed through the second half of October and early November.

OCT 30 Arrive in vibrant Mexico City and stretch your legs with a guided neighborhood walk along elegant Reforma Avenue and the historic downtown. The city begins to glow with "Día de Muertos" decorations. Feel the city's pulse from the very start.

OCT 31 Dive into Mexico's rich past with a visit to the Zócalo, the grand Cathedral, the archaeological site of Templo Mayor and the most important treasures in downtown Mexico City. Admire elaborate "altares de muerto" and end the day with the artistic splendor of Palacio de Bellas Artes.

NOV 01 Journey beyond the city to the majestic pyramids of Teotihuacán, a UNESCO World Heritage Site, with meaningful stops at Tlatelolco and the Basilica of Guadalupe along the way.

NOV 02 Explore the bohemian charm of the south—wander the cobbled streets of San Ángel and Coyoacán, and visit Frida Kahlo's colorful home, a window into her life and art. Homes and plazas take on an even more enchanting atmosphere this time of the year, beautifully adorned with marigold flowers, colourful "papel picado" and elegant Catrinas.

NOV 03 Discover the cultural heart of Mexico at Chapultepec, home to the world-renowned National Museum of Anthropology, the historic park, and other nearby gems.

NOV 04 Enter the dreamlike Anahuacalli Museum, designed by Diego Rivera to house his pre-Hispanic art collection, then drift through the canals of Xochimilco on a traditional boat ride. Celebrate with a joyful Farewell dinner celebrating Mexican culture and traditions.

NOV 05 Departure day—take with you unforgettable memories of the living spirit of "Día de Muertos" and one of the world's most culturally vibrant cities.
